EXECUTION OF SUE MUNDY

As Told By the Old
Louisville Journal.

He Wrote A Letter to His Sweetheart A Short Time Before
He Was Hanged.

[The following clipping from the old Louisville Journal, giving an account of the hanging of Sue Mundy, the famous guerrilla chieftain, was given to The Sun by Mr. J. I. Martin.]

AN INTERVIEW WITH THE PRISONER.

Sue Mundy was ignorant of his fate until yesterday morning. Rev. Mr. Talbott, of St. Pauls Episcopal Church, was his spiritual adviser. When he asked Sue if he knew what would be done with him, he said he thought he would be executed, as the court-martial refused to have him introduced witnesses. The minister then asked him if he had any ideas when his execution would take place. He replied, "In a few weeks." The minister then told him it would be earlier than that, "in a few days." Rev. Mr. T. then informed him that his execution would take place in a few hours. He was under the impression that he would be shot, but when he was told that he would be hung he manifested a little uneasiness by a sigh and uttering "Oh." After the first tidings of his fate he was very calm and collected. When he fully realized his condition he knelt with his minister in prayer, and requested him to pray with him. After instruction and confession of faith in the Church, he requested to be baptized. This ordinance was administered an hour before his execution, after he had declared that he had no malice against anyone, and loved everybody. He then requested Mr. Talbott to write letters to his sister, aunt, cousin, and a young lady of this State, having a look of his hair cut off and placed in each letter.

He declared that he was not guilty of one-tenth of the outrages that he was charged with, and that the Louisville Journal had done him great injustice. He positively declared that he was not present at all when those negro soldiers were killed near Simpsonville, but was far from the scene and wounded at the time. He also denied being present when a man named Roberts was killed, and said he did not know who did it.

A white cap was then placed over his head, and at the word three the prop was pulled from under the trap. The fall was not more than three feet, and did not break his neck; like the other victim, he choked to death. We have seen a great many persons hung, but never before did we witness such hard struggles and convulsions. It was feared for a time that he would break the lashings. His sufferings, however, were of short duration. Thus ended the career of the notorious Sue Mundy. He was left hanging some twenty minutes before he was cut down. Immediately a crowd gathered around the body, some trying to cut off a button, others snatching at the cord to secure a piece as a memento. A rumor was started that his jacket contained a lot of greenbacks, carefully sewed in the lining. Accordingly, before he was placed in the coffin, a general search was instituted, but nothing was found. As an evidence that he did die a heart and a fellow-feeling in his bosom, we append a letter to a young lady of this State, written in the Military Prison on a few moments before he was taken to the place of execution:

MY DEAR—I have to inform you of the sad fate which awaits your true friend. I am to suffer death this afternoon at 4 o'clock. I send you, from my chains, a message of love, and as I stand on the brink of the grave, I tell you I do truly, and fondly, and forever love you.

I am, ever truly, yours,

MR. JEROME CLARK.

AN EXCITING SCENE.

Before the prisoner was cut down from the gallows, the crowd began to disperse, and Broadway soon was jammed with a living floating mass. Onward flowed the stream, and as the head of the disordered column arrived opposite the Military Prison, a furious bull took a firm stand in the middle of the street, and stubbornly opposed the passage of the crowd. He lowered his head and threatened to gore all who came in his way. His horns were quite formidable, and the argument he presented was somewhat pointed. Some of the advance skirmishers drew revolvers, and began firing at the enraged animal. Most of the shots whistled harmlessly over him, while a few struck him in various parts of the body, goading him to further madness. The crowd became denser around the furious bull, and the firing became more rapid and wild. The bull would make at an individual when a volley of pistol-shots would be directed at him, the report would startle the ear, the smoke curl above, a pell-mell rush ensue, and all be lost in a volume of dust. To those in the distance the report of firearms, the swaying of the crowd, and the swelling shouts appeared and sounded like a riot, and it was thought that a bloody fight was going on between a mob. The excitement became intense, and everybody rushed frantically forward. Far down the road the commotion spread, and the rush was truly fearful. Footmen, men, women, and children, began to run; men on horseback, military and civilians, spurred their steeds to their mettle, and, regardless of life or limb, rode furiously onward.

THE STATE ORGANIZER

Of the A. S. of E. Will Speak In Springfield
County Court
Day.

The State organizer of the American Society of Equity will speak at Springfield county court day, Monday, Sept. 24, 3:30 p. m., at Texas, 25, 3:30 p. m., Mackville, 26, 3:30 p. m., Williamsburg, 27, 3:30 p. m., Polin, 28, 3:30 p. m., Mooresville, 29, 10:00 a. m.

The speaking in Springfield will take place at the Court House at 2 p. m.

The subject to be discussed will be: "How to Secure Profitable Prices For All Farm Products." The speaker will explain in detail the principles of controlling the market and price-making on the farm and will show how the uncertainties in prices for farm products is being removed by the American Society of Equity. All who are interested in securing profitable prices for farm products are especially requested to attend this meeting.

In the opinion of The Sun the American Society of Equity is greater and better by far than all former farmers' organizations, and we are anxious to see strong Locals organized in every community in Washington county.

MOTHER'S PLEA

May Cause Temperance Forces
To Win Fight.

Mr. Sterling, Ky., Sept. 17.—Jesse P. Nelson, Jr., aged thirty-five, died suddenly this morning. Whiskey was found in his pockets. His mother, Mrs. J. P. Nelson, issued a heart rending appeal to voters to wipe out the saloons on election day, next Wednesday, and over her own, the father's and sister's signatures the saloons are charged with ruin and death. The appeal reads: "The whiskey men in a panic, and tonight the saloons closed their doors at 6 o'clock, lest something happen to injure them before election day. There is much excitement here over the local option fight."

Torture By Savages.

"Speaking of the tortures to which some of the savage tribes in the Philippines subject their captives, reminds me of the intense suffering I endured for three months from inflammation of the kidneys," says W. M. Sherman, of Cushing, Mo. "Nothing helped me until I tried Electric Bitters, three bottles of which completely cured me." Cures Liver Complaint, Dyspepsia, Blood Disorders and Malaria, and restores the weak and nervous to robust health. Guaranteed by C. J. Hayden druggist. Price 50c.

SPRINGFIELD APPROPRIATES

The Sum of $100 to Pay
Fine of Mr. C. A.
Thompson.

FINED FOR OPENING SALOON
AUGUST 25th.

The City Council, at its regular meeting on last Friday, made an appropriation of $100 to pay the fine of Mr. C. A. Thompson, who, it will be remembered, was recently tried before Police Judge Noe, and the above fine assessed, upon a charge of having opened his saloon on the 25th day of last August, the day of the local option election in Washington county. Mr. Thompson claims that he merely opened his saloon to procure his registration certificate. The section of the election law violated by Mr. Thompson is very stringent, and makes no provision for a saloon being opened on election day, it matters not for what purpose, and the court, before whom Mr. Thompson was tried, could find no grounds for an acquittal. However, the fine is sufficient to have authorized an appeal to the Circuit Court, and if affirmed by the Circuit Court, the case could have been taken to the Court of Appeals. This could have been done, too, at a very small cost. The only question involved is a construction of the law; the facts being practically agreed upon. But Mr. Thompson instead of having the matter settled in this manner, appealed to the City Council, with the above result.

When this question was put to the Council and the vote was taken a tie resulted. Mr. W. C. McChord and Mr. Conrad Hertel voted against the appropriation, and Mr. W. K. Robertson and Mr. Chas. Logsdon voting for it. Hon. John W. Lewis, Mayor, was called upon to cast the deciding vote, and he voted for the appropriation, and thus the city treasurer was authorized to pay Mr. Thompson's fine.

HOUNDED BY THE OFFICERS

Because He Violated Local Option Law A Munfordville
Man Committed Suicide.

Munfordville, Ky., Sept. 12.—John H. Haesley committed suicide at his home this morning by shooting himself through the heart. Joe Stuart, Deputy Sheriff of Hart county, was given seven bench warrants this morning to serve on Haesley for alleged illicit sale of liquor, and was at home when the rash act was committed. Stuart's story is as follows:

"I met Mr. Haesley in the yard and told him my business. He seemed in good humor and told me to go out on the porch while he dressed to accompany me back to town where he was to secure bond. I hardly seated myself when I heard the report of a shotgun. His wife screamed, and we ran into the room. Haesley lay upon the bed breathing his last. His whole side had been blown out by the charge. Haesley had partially undressed, and, it is thought that he discharged the weapon with his toe."

Haesley was a native of Switzerland, but has been in Hart county for the past ten years. He was formerly proprietor of the Walton House here, and is well known to traveling men. He was a Mason of high degree and was about fifty years of age. He was survived by his wife and two small children. For several months it has been charged that Haesley was connected with the illegal sale of liquor. Inability to face the charges was probably the cause of the suicide. The inquest will be this afternoon.

Three men were blown to pieces as the result of the premature explosion of dynamite at a railroad camp near Kenova, Minn.

HIGH SCHOOL NEWS.

What's Doing In School Circles.

News of the College.

The melancholy days are come, The saddest of the year, When on his knees the school-boy sees His marbles disappear. He blames the fates and emulates Men older far than he: What if he loses? 'Tis no excuse To lay him down to sleep. He tries again, but all in vain, To make a winning shot. He reaches down, finds with a frown That marbles he had not, Little frets but goes and gets A nickel's worth or so, And in a day they're shot away: Thus does our school life go. These are the tragedies that fill, The hardships that annoy, The troubles that are pleasure still In the life of every boy.

Miss Jennie Craycroft arrived Tuesday night to take charge of the music class at the school. She will begin teaching this week and has promise of a good class.

The mandolin and guitar club seems to be very popular in the school and a large number of the students are taking advantage of the excellent opportunity to learn to play on these two instruments. With average success Miss Ray, who will instruct the club, promises to have them playing in concert in two months.

The new concrete basement is finished and in a few days will be ready for use. This is a very great improvement to our school and both teachers and pupils appreciate the additional pleasure and comfort they will derive from it.

John S. McElroy, our first graduate, entered Central University this week. He was admitted to the Sophomore year without examination, which we take as a substantial estimate of the work of our school by the highest classed university of the State.

The beautifying of our already beautiful schoolyard is involving the attention of the teachers. Miss Nunan, with the aid of the little ones of the primary room, has done praiseworthy work in clearing the yard of paper that had accumulated during the last semester. They intend planting some fall flowers and to make some flower-beds for tulips and other bulbs. It has also been decided to have Arbor Day this year and set out some trees.

Misses Eunice O'Nan and Frances Markham will leave on the 25th for Bristol, Tennessee, where they will attend school during the coming year. Bristol is on the state line between Tennessee and Virginia, in the mountains, and the young ladies are anticipating a successful and enjoyable year.

Bernard Mudd, who started to school last week, went home ill on Wednesday and we are grieved to hear has typhoid fever.

Messrs. Morris Durrett, Lynne Bush and Robert Mayes entered the State college of Kentucky at Lexington last week. The grading they received there shows well for the standing of our school.

Joan Claybrooke arrived from Louisville Saturday night and entered school Monday.

The editor of this column was considerably annoyed last week by the rumor that a student in the fifth grade has happened to a very shocking accident, to wit, having "walked up" his eyes he was unable to get them back to their normal position. We beg to assure our readers, if there be any, that no making of eyes in any way is permitted in the school, and we have the authority of the teacher referred to to deny it.

Married In Springfield.

Mr. Everett Keeling and Miss Myrtle Sutherland were married in Springfield, Sept. 15. After the ceremony they left on the afternoon train for Cincinnati, where they will spend several days. Miss Sutherland is the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Sutherland and is an attractive young lady. Mr. Keeling is an intelligent young business man. May they ever be happy is the wish of the writer.

CANDIDATE GULLION

Says Springfield Is One of the Best Towns
He Ever Saw

Compliments the Town and Its Business Men.

MISTAKEN FOR MR. CRAYDROFT.

In prosecuting my canvass for votes in the race for State Superintendent of Public Instruction I have found a number of good towns, but by far the most up-to-date and enterprising town among them is Springfield, the county seat of Washington county. It is not my purpose to write sketches of the places I visit, but I shall say at least a few words about Springfield.

The population of the little city is only 1,600, yet in the matter of trade and public utilities it surpasses many a city of 5,000 people. It is the terminus of what is known as the Bardonia Branch of the L. & N., and is in the midst of a fine tobacco growing section, the county having produced several million pounds last year. The city is not handicapped by larger places, for there are none near. Those facts explain the cause of so much business.

Besides several large stores, the town boasts of an ice factory of good size, a harness factory, cigar factory and other things that make business.

It is a matter of the greatest pride with the people that they have a well equipped and well managed graded school, the building alone having cost $18,000.00. An $18,000.00 opera house, a $60,000.00 hotel, another hotel that cost $12,000.00, and other handsome structures are among the most striking features of the place. An excellent waterworks system and a good electric light plant are the comforts-givers for these good people, and they are justly proud of them.

The city has two banks—The First National and the Peoples Bank. Each is capitalized at $50,000.00, and is doing a fine business. The cashier of the last named bank is J. A. Boudware, formerly of Henry county, and the bank has done phenomenally well under his management. Mr. B. is one of the best known, useful and influential citizens of the city. To him I am indebted for much courtesy, as well as for assistance in my race.

The larger of the hotels is The Walton, of which Woodson Moss is the proprietor. It has all modern conveniences and would do credit to a city of 50,000.

The city has two excellent newspapers, with large circulations; also one of the finest photographers in the State, in the person of E. A. Cox.

I stopped at "The Walton." When in the act of registering four men came rushing at me exclaiming "How are you, George?" and giving evidence of pleasure at seeing me. They were mistaken in the man, and explained that George Craycroft, a former citizen, now living in Chicago, was the person they thought they were greeting. During my stay the same mistake was made by a score of other persons. It became embarrassing. Finally I queried in my distress, who has George done?

"Oh, George, he's all right," said Assessor O'Bryan, "he's been here, if it is true, but he never more than kindled up a few creaks." Whereupon I asserted that if I got to be State Superintendent I will go George one better, for I will then have the match to set the river afire, and will proceed to do so. E. A. Gullion in Henry County Local.

Judge Baker's Instructions.

Columbia, Ky., Sept. 17.—Judge H. C. Baker's instructions to the September grand jury of Adair county, on the recent liquor legislation, prohibiting the shipping of liquor into or bringing more than one gallon at a time, by any person, into a local option district, were the most rigid and pointed charge delivered by a Judge to an Adair county grand jury in many years. Judge Baker made the law plain and to the point, and according to his instruction there can be no mistake as to the intention of the law.

Judge Baker's construction in certain sections of the liquor law is as follows: A distiller has the right to wholesale liquor of his own make in Adair county in quantities of five gallons or more.

It must be a good faith wholesale transaction, and not a device to avoid the operation of the local option law. It is sold even in this quantity for division among contributors to be a common fund, to the knowledge of the man selling it, it is neither a good faith nor a wholesale transaction.

If it is sold to a "bootlegger" to be trafficked out by him in a local option territory, it is a violation of the law.

A new law on our statutes is entitled an "Act to regulate the carrying, moving, delivery, transferring or distributing of intoxicating liquors in local option districts." There is some disagreement among lawyers as to the meaning of the law, and it will doubtless be under the scrutiny of our Appellate Court as soon as a case can be carried there.

The purpose of the law is to remedy an evil and prevent the conveyance of liquor and distribution of it in localities where the people have said they did not wish it to be brought, and it was intended to apply to all persons. The provision in regard to individuals bringing it in for private use makes this very clear, and any other construction would stultify the law makers. We can not believe they meant to limit common carriers and individuals who carry freight or goods for hire to a gallon or less and permit others to have it in unlimited quantities; this would render the law obnoxious as class legislation.

I construe section 4 of the act as applicable especially to men who, living outside of the local option territory, send liquor into it, and have heretofore been protected by the rule of the common law.

I desire you, gentlemen, to look after the non-resident sellers who have heretofore from a safe standpoint debauched our communities with liquors.

Heretofore they could not be reached, but now the law extends to the limits of the Commonwealth in the liquor traffic, and it will bring them here for trial when indicted.

WINNING VICTORIES

Local Option carries In Three Counties Last Week.

Hardin, Trigg and Lincoln Go
Dry.

Elizabethtown, Ky., Sept. 15.—At the local option election to-day Hardin county went dry by a majority of 551 votes. Considerable interest had been shown in the election since the call was issued, and for several days both sides had claimed the victory. The local option forces waged a thorough speaking campaign over the county, while the liquor people, while less quiet, were less active, hand-billing the county, circulating literature and waging strong opposition.

The election applies only to Elizabethtown and Ather's precinct, these being the only wet places in the county.

Cadiz, Ky., Sept. 15.—The local optionists in Trigg county won a victory in the election held to-day to decide whether or not this county shall have saloons. With one precinct missing the returns show that the "drys" have won by a majority of sixty-four. The missing precinct will not effect the result, although it decides claim it. The fight between the liquor interests and local optionists has been close for several weeks, and much interest was taken in the election. No disorder occurred at any of the polling places.

Cadiz now has saloons, and there are several in other parts of the county.

Crab Orchard, Ky., Sept. 13.—Lincoln went dry yesterday by a majority of 1,249. In Crab Orchard the vote was moved under to the tune of 240. The election caused great interest, and the dries are jubilant to-day.

Boiler Explodes and Kills Two Men at Mt. Sterling.—Murder at Glasgow.

Murdered at His Father's Bedside. Gov. Beckham And The Louisville Lid.

RAZERS IN TROUBLE AT HOPKINSVILLE.

Mt. Sterling, Ky.—A terrific explosion occurred at Mariba, Menifee county, when the boiler of Riley Waters sawmill blew up. The building was torn to pieces, and Ross Byrd and John Hale were instantly killed, their bodies being badly mutilated by falling timbers and pieces of iron. Miss Dice Wilson was fatally burned, and James Hager and Mrs. Waters, wife of the owner, and her child were so badly burned and scalded that they will be crippled for life, even should they recover. The boiler was blown down hundreds of feet away. The loss on the mill will be about $2,000. This is the third explosion which has occurred in Menifee county within the past year from hot boilers.

JUST FOR FUN

Franklin Wrote Letter Which Caused His Brother-in-Law's Death.

Glasgow, Ky.—The mystery surrounding the murder of Ed Hogard, who was killed on the night of August 5 while asleep at the home of his brother-in-law, J. J. Franklin at Greenburg, Ky., is thought to be about cleared away. Just before he was killed Hogard received threatening letters. On the strength of those letters Franklin has been arrested charged with the crime. The fact that led to his arrest was the striking similarity of his handwriting to that of the party who wrote the threatening letters. After being held to the grand jury Franklin admitted writing his brother-in-law a letter, "just for fun."

GOEBEL CASES

Are Again Kept From Trial, Continuances Being Granted.

Frankfort, Ky.—In the circuit court, when the cases against W. S. Taylor, Charles Finley, John L. Powers and W. H. Cullon, indicted for the Goebel assassination, were called on for trial, Commonwealth Attorney Franklin asked that they be continued and as alias summons issued for each of them. This order has been entered in these cases at every term of court since September, 1900. The cases against F. W. Golden, Green Golden, Frank C. Cullon and Zack Steele were continued without alias summons. The whereabouts of all the above-named men, except John L. Powers and W. H. Cullon, is known.

AT THE BEDSIDE

Of His Critically Ill Father Doctor Shoots His Stepbrother.

Fulton, Ky.—At the bedside of his critically ill father, J. E. Moore, Dr. Jeff Moore is alleged to have shot and instantly killed his stepbrother, Van Williams. Owing to his father's illness Dr. Moore had been summoned from his home in Nevada, Mo. Williams came to the bedside from his home in Emory, Miss. It is alleged that Dr. Moore fired three shots into Williams's body. Moore is now under arrest. The cause of the trouble is unknown.

HELD BY HIS HEELS.

Out of a Third-Story Window—Charges of Hazing in a High School.

Hopkinsville, Ky.—John Lawson, William Earle, George Abbott, Charles Meacham and Joe Slaughter, five pupils of the public high school here, have been suspended for the alleged hazing of freshmen. The charge was preferred by City Tax Collector H. C. Moore, who alleged that his son had been held by his heels out of a third-story window. When the teachers arrived at the "Clay street school building" they found that red paint had been freely used on the gate, and on the front step appeared "Ye who enter here leave all hope behind." The doors and windows were numerous signs spelled according to President Roosevelt's revision method.

JUDGE LASSING'S PLACE

On the Democratic Committee to Be Given to Haldeman.

Louisville, Ky.—Following the resignation of Judge J. M. Lassing as a member-at-large of the Democratic state central and executive committee, it was authoritatively given out that Col. W. B. Haldeman would be selected to fill the vacancy. It is thought that Chairman Lewis McQuinn will issue a call for a meeting in a few days when Col. Haldeman will be formally given the post. It is not now believed that the name of Louis Desnoyers, of Lexington, who has made an active canvass for the position, will be presented to the committee, as Col. Haldeman has more than enough votes to carry him through.

MILITIA WILL SCREW DOWN

Louisville, Ky., if the Police Can't Do it, Says Gov. Beckham.

Louisville, Ky.—Gov. Beckham told Mayor Paul C. Barth that he wanted all saloons and theaters in Louisville closed on Sunday, and that if he did not have sufficient police power to carry this order into effect he (the governor) would assist him by calling out the militia. The governor, the mayor and the city attorney talked the matter over for about an hour. The governor declared the law was being violated by saloons and theaters being open for the sale of soft drinks and that it was the duty of the state and city to see that they were closed. Mayor Barth said that he did not know it was necessary to take any additional steps relative to Sunday closing. The saloon men say they will stand on their rights and will keep open next Sunday for the sale of soft drinks, despite the governor.

KENTUCKY METHODISTS

Of Central and Eastern District Are Meeting at Winchester.

Winchester, Ky.—Methodists of Central and Eastern Kentucky are meeting here in annual conference. The preliminary meeting was presided over by Rev. B. F. Chatham, of Covington, but the real opening of the conference was directed by Right Rev. Bishop Eugene R. Hendrix, of Kansas City. Mo. Rev. J. M. Woods preached at the first Methodist church, the scene of the meeting. The citizens gave a reception to the visitors, and the college students in the new Kentucky Wesleyan college building. Dr. W. F. Taylor, chairman of the board of education, was called home by the death of his wife. Winchester people have asked that Dr. J. L. Weber, the retiring president of the Kentucky Wesleyan college, be assigned here, succeeding Rev. J. R. Savage, transferred.

This is a liniment, remarkable for its great power over pain. It quickly allays the excruciating pains of rheumatism and makes sleep and rest possible. For sale by every reliable dealer in the Blue Grass.

Tobacco Caused the Trouble.

Harrodsburg Herald: George and John Williams engaged in a pistol duel at Dixville last Friday, and though each took several shots at the other, none of the bullets hit the mark. It is said that John got behind Armpit Patterson and used him as a bulwark. It is also said that George stood the fire of his enemy like a Spanish war veteran, and though he returned shot for shot with John, using a 44 Colt, he purposely did not aim straight for fear of killing Patterson, who, during the bombardment was vociferously calling on him to desist. Statistics show that 95 per cent. of such scraps are due to whiskey, but this trouble seems, can be laid at the door of tobacco. From the best information obtainable it appears that George Williams was a tobacco tenant on the farm of Winfield Williams, father of John. It is claimed George had drawn more than his share of the crop would come to, and wanted to throw up the job. It is alleged that his language was very rough and that Mrs. Winfield Williams ordered him off the place, and threatened to burn the house in which he lived. Sure enough the tenant house caught fire and burned. Then George swore out a warrant against Mrs. Winfield Williams, asking that she be put under a bond to keep the peace—that she had threatened to injure him and his wife. The matter came up Wednesday last week before Squire Cardwell. Upon investigation County Attorney Allen dismissed the case because of lack of proof, for it would have been hard to make anyone believe that Mrs. Williams would burn the property of her husband, especially so when there was no insurance on it. Then George and John Williams met Friday and renewed the trouble, as stated above. The Williams are not related.

Bryan is Not Afraid of Work and

ALL THE HANDS LOVE "W. J."

(A. H. GROCH IN LOUISVILLE HERALD.)

"Fairview," the farm home of William J. Bryan, lies three miles southeast of Lincoln. You leave the street car at what is known as "Bryan Station," and then you see a house set on a hill with a landscape of corn fields, alfalfa and a grove around about it. It is the farm home of William Jennings Bryan.

The house is built of chipped bricks with brownstone trimmings and slate roof, which slants in long, graceful lines from lofty gable to low eaves. A broad porch with brownstone coping extends partly around the south and west sides in a graceful curve. Steps lead down to the driveway on one side and to the lawn on the other.

A chipped brick barn stands back of the house, and back of this a hundred yards down the gentle slope can be seen two frame barns and a frame house, the latter the residence of the manager, William B. Milson, Bryan's nephew.

The orchard stands on the north side of the house with the garden and hothouse between.

The path through the alfalfa field leads to the cinder driveway near the house. A swing, chairs, flower beds and shade trees give the lawn an appearance of homeliness and comfort.

Fairview is, indeed, well named. Standing on the lawn, one can see for several miles across corn fields and orchards of prosperous farms and suburban places, to the northwest, where the city lies, and to the south where beyond fields of corn, broken by the sinuous line of trees which mark Salt creek, stands the large college of the Adventists.

From the front of the house I walked around the driveway to the rear. A white bulldog lay on the stone ledge surrounding the back porch, his head resting on his paws. He was like a dog off stone as he looked unblinkingly down. This was Mrs. Bryan's dog, "General." He was purchased a number of years ago from "Fatty" Holman, who kept a fruit stand and was a local celebrity. The Bryans have one other dog, a Scotch collie named "Bird."

I saw an old man with a one-horse wagon filled a barrel with water from the hydrant by his barn. I found him to be one of Mr. Bryan's tenants. He rents sixty of the 157 acres which comprise the farm. He grinned when I asked him if Bryan was a good landlord.

"Sure, an' if they was all like Mr. Bryan there'd be no complaint to make. A nicer, more agreeable man I never worked for."

Milson, the manager, was building a fence around a fifty-acre pasture, which Mr. Bryan recently purchased. A swarthy young man with a firm jaw, a pleasant smile and a hearty laugh, is William Milson.

The new fence was to attract attention on any farm. The posts were set at frequent intervals. Upon them was fastened the well-stretched woven wire. In the language of the advertisement, it appeared to be literally "big tight, bull strong and horse high."

"Yes, that's a pretty good fence," said Milson, after the introduction.

"Uncle Will bought a car load of the posts last fall. It was an awful job to put it up, but now it's fenced for good."

"W. J. don't go in for and half-way

Milson refers to Bryan as "Uncle Will" and "W. J." Others about the place call him "Mr. Bryan" and "W. J."

"Does he work?" exclaimed Milson, with the accent on the verb.

"You just ought to see him. He's a worker from 'way back. He can beat us in some ways."

Wish he'd been there to dig some of these post holes for us," said Loring, the hired man, with a grin.

"It wouldn't be the first time," said Milson.

"I won't soon forget the time he rolled off them two loads of alfalfa after supper that night," continued the hired man. Milson laughed.

"Well, he certainly made us hustle some then. Yes, he came out after supper. We had brought in two loads of alfalfa and they were standing in the barnyard. It looked like rain. 'W. J.' hurried us out and we got in the left while he rolled it off. He never said a word, but the way them forks came in through the door was a caution. He got it unloaded just as it started to rain. Then he jumped down and unhooked the horses and hurried them into the stable. He'd rather get wet through himself than have that team stand in the rain."

"No, he doesn't wear overalls—just an old suit of clothes. He does all kinds of farm work, pitches hay, drives the mower, and so on."

Bryan takes particular interest in cattle. His herd is one of extra fine breed, and each animal was selected by Mr. Bryan himself. There are fourteen shorthorn and eight Jerseys, all thoroughbreds.

Two shorthorns of extraordinary beauty in the herd are "Red Rose of Fairview" and "Venus." The latter was presented to Mr. Bryan by A. C. Shallenberger, Democratic nominee for Governor of Nebraska this year. Among the thoroughbred polly Jerseys, "Bees of Fairview" and her two-year-old daughter are Mr. Bryan's favorites. They are remarkably handsome cattle, and so tame that Mr. Bryan can feed them from his hand.

The cattle barn is built in accordance with modern scientific principles. It has a concrete floor and patent iron partitions and chains at the rear, so that neither halters or stanchions are needed. Back of the barn is a roomy shed with feeding racks, affording a sheltered place for winter.

Mr. Bryan's favorite breed of hogs is the Poland-China, of which he has a herd of fifteen fine specimens. Two of the sows now have fine litters of pigs, and not one has been lost from either litter.

But the horses are the real pride of Fairview. There are six of them. This number includes the magnificent work team. They are a black and a bay. Although large animals, they are so proportioned that they are often used by Mr. Bryan as carriage horses in driving about the country. "Governor," the riding horse presented to Mr. Bryan by Gov. Stone in 1897, is now getting old and spends much of his time in the pasture with the Jersey cattle. One of the latter Mr. Bryan calls "Governor's Chum" because of her evident preference for the company of the famous horse.

"You bet, Uncle Will keeps tab on what's going on here," said Milson, as he showed me about the place. "He knows just how the crops stand, in what condition the fences are and how the stock is getting along. He's no great expert on judging stock, but he knows a good animal when he sees it, and he's never been 'stuck' yet in buying. You couldn't fool him on a horse trade, either."

There was a mud hole about the watering tank where the water had overflowed and been tramped by cattle. "This is all going to be fixed up," explained Milson. "Uncle Will wrote me when he was in Manila to concrete the whole barnyard, but I've been too busy to get it done."

"You just wait till 'W. J.' gets home and he'll get around to it, I'll bet," grinned the hired man.

The visitor to the Bryan farm is impressed with one thing above all others. That is, stability. It is written all over the place. Mr. Bryan builds nothing temporarily. The fence of the fifty-acre pasture is an example. The stables, too, are floored in concrete. The farm machinery is all of the best, and the buildings are practically fireproof and wear-proof.

Everything is convenient. There is running water on all parts of the farm. One windmill furnishes it under the force pressure system, and there are hydrants on the lawn, in the garden, in the barns, in the pastures, and faucets with hot and cold water all over the house.

A hot house and ice house add much to the pleasure of life at Fairview.

Mrs. Bryan is as prodigious a worker as her husband. She is endowed with splendid health and remarkable strength and endurance. When at home she is a familiar figure in her sunbonnet working in the garden among the flowers and the vegetables, superintending the making of butter and the general economics of the home.

GREW RICH

Off of One-Tenth of An Acre of
Ginseng Did this Boyle County Man.

Boyle County Herald: Mr. Timothy Routen is a modest citizen who has grown wealthy in five years without capital and without toil.

He lives on Main street in Junction City and owns a garden not more than one hundred feet square. Five years ago he invested $10 in ginseng seed and planted them in his garden, and to-day he has fully $10,000 worth of plants and seeds as the direct result.

Ginseng is a native of the woods and will not grow in the sunshine. It must have shade, and at the same time requires air, so Mr. Routen thought that the herb would grow most profitably in a grape harbor, and his judgment proved correct.

He has several rows of grapevines in his garden, which spread over a high frame-work. The vines are kept well trimmed along the sides of the frames, but are allowed to form a solid shade on top. The result is an ideal place for growing ginseng.

No work is required in cultivating the plant, as nothing else will grow in such dense shade. Weeds do not bother it, because they will not grow without a little sunshine. The only thing necessary is to first see that the ground is thoroughly fertile and that it is properly shaded. Mr. Routen makes good money selling grapes and at the same time has grown moderately wealthy in five years off a ten-dollar investment in raising ginseng.

He states that he has not done as much as a week's work on his entire crop during the five years, except in grooming the grapevines, which would have had to be done anyway.

Some days ago he sold 600 yearling plants to a St. Louis firm for $300, but his plants which have four and five years' growth are worth fifty cents, and at a very reasonable average the 100,000 plants in his garden are worth ten cents, or $10,000 as a whole. He sells the seeds at $55 per pound and has a market for ten times as many as he can supply, and, on the other hand, he cannot begin to supply the demand for plants.

The seeds are selling this year for a little less than one cent each, but the price frequently goes above the one-cent mark. Mr. Routen has not as much as one-tenth of an acre in cultivation, which indicates that the ginseng business is very profitable for the small land-owner and gardener. The stalks are now about a foot and a half high and the seeds grow in red pods, like small peppers. Mr. Routen says the demand for ginseng in China is truly marvelous and that the Chinamen make gin of it.

A Scientific Wonder.

The cures that stand to its credit makes Bucklen's Arnica Salve a scientific wonder. It cured E. R. Mulford, lecturer for the Patrons of Husbandry, Waynesboro, Pa., of a distressing case of Piles. It healed the worst Burns, Sores, Bala Cancers, Cuts, Wounds, Chilblains and Salt Rheum. Only 25c at C. J. Haydon's drug store.

Former Gov. Aaron Thomas Bliss, of Michigan, died in Milwaukee of apoplexy.

Robbing Yourself

That is just what you are doing when you fail to get regular and sufficient sleep. Your body requires this unconscious period for repair work; without it your nerve energy becomes exhausted, and you are tired, worn-out, nervous, excitable, have headache, neuralgia, indigestion, poor appetite, or other ailments caused by a lack of nerve force. Make it your business to sleep.

If you are restless, take Dr. Miles' Nervine; it soothes and strengthens the nerves, and brings sweet, refreshing, life-giving sleep, and gives the organs power to work naturally. Try it to-day.

"I had a severe spell of fever, which left me in a very weak condition, and very nervous. I had severe spells of headache and neuralgia, and could sleep but very little. Every effort that I made to recover my strength was of no avail until I began taking Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine. After I commenced to take the Nervine my sleep was profound and restful, and the pains in my head, as well as the neuralgia pains, left me to a certain extent, and I grew gradually better."

Dr. Miles' Nervine is sold by your druggist, who will guarantee that the first bottle will benefit. If it fails, he will refund your money.

MR. BRYAN IN LOUISVILLE.

Last Wednesday in his Louisville address Mr. Bryan said:

In my speech at the New York reception, I made some remarks concerning Government ownership of railroads. . . . The New York speech was prepared in advance. . . . I stated exactly what I wanted to state, and I have nothing to withdraw or modify.

If you ask me whether the question of Government ownership will be an issue in the campaign of 1908, I answer, I do not know. If you ask me whether it ought to be in the platform, I reply I cannot tell until I know what the Democratic voters think upon this subject. If the Democrats believe that the next platform should contain a plank in favor of Government ownership, then that plank ought to be included. If the Democrats think it ought not to contain such a plank, then the plank ought not to be included. . . . I have spoken for myself and for myself only, and I did not know how the suggestion would be received. I am now prepared to confess to you that it has been received more favorably than I expected.

There is this that I do expect, namely, that those Democrats who oppose Government ownership will accompany their declaration against it with the assertion that they will favor Government ownership whenever they are convinced that the country must choose between Government ownership of the roads and railroad ownership of the Government.

I still advocate strict regulation, and shall rejoice if experience proves that that regulation can be made effective. I will go farther than that and say that I believe we can have more efficient regulation under a Democratic Administration, with a Democratic Senate and House, than we are likely to have under a Republican Administration, with a Republican Senate and House, and yet I would not be honest with you if I did not frankly admit that observation has convinced me that no efficient regulation is possible, and that Government ownership can be undertaken on the plan outlined with less danger to the country than is involved in private ownership, as we have had it or as we are likely to have it. I have been brought to regard public ownership as the ultimate remedy by railroad history, which is as familiar to you as to me.

"Mr. Bryan made a great speech to-night," declared Senator Carmack, of Tennessee. "I think that his explanation of his advocacy of governmental ownership of the railroads of the country was handled in a satisfactory manner and that it has put his position on this subject in a very different light. It will greatly strengthen his position on this question in the Southern States."

William J. Bryan will continue his Southern tour this week, and will deliver an address at Atlanta on Thursday.

"WALTONETTS"
Kentucky State Journal.

Way back in the common law we find a common scold to be: "A woman who scolds indiscriminately in public." The term is now very nearly obsolete, but there is still an occasional indictment and prosecution under this section. Attorney General Hays should thank his stars that he is not a woman—and all the good women in Kentucky will join him in returning thanks.

Mr. Bryan's explanation of his Government ownership of railroads theory is satisfactory. He is not going to try to force it down Democratic throats, whether or no. His individual opinion is that they should be owned by the government, but only as an ultimate remedy. Now let's talk about something else.

The Dowager Empress of China has chopped off the heads of a couple of defaulting Chinese bank officials. That's business. If such punishment prevailed in this country there would be no more such lookings as recently occurred in Chicago and Philadelphia. What we need is a Dowager Empress or some such power to put a full stop on the Stensland's and others.

Secretary Shaw made a slip at Asheville, N. C., that he won't permit again. He mentioned the name of Bryan in his speech and the applause that followed like to have broken up the meeting.

The editor of the Springfield Sun is not J. Rogers Gore, as the compositor insisted, but J. Rogers Gore, and we rise to remark that his is one of the brightest and best printed papers that grace our desk.

"God bless him and give him wisdom," said Marne Henry, pointing at the Hon. William Jennings Bryan. All of which the good Lord hath already abundantly done.

Death of Mrs. Hood

Mrs. Kate Hood died at her home at Cynthiana last Thursday night, as a result of a nervous collapse, she having been in ill health for some time. The deceased was born and reared in Springfield and was a sister of Mr. Andrew Cunningham, of the firm of Cunningham, Duncan & Co. Mrs. Hood was a member of the Presbyterian church, and was an earnest Christian woman. She was charitable and kind, and her death removes a much loved and lovable character. Funeral services occurred at Lexington Friday morning. Besides Mr. Cunningham, of this place, the deceased leaves a sister, Mrs. Will Davis, of Louisville. To these sorrowing ones, The Sun, together with many friends, extends sympathy.

Death of Aged Citizen.

Mr. Clem Hamilton, of Loretto, in Madison county, died last Friday morning aged 92. He was the father of Mr. Patrick Hamilton and Mr. Ned Hamilton, and Mrs. Josie Newton, and Mrs. Etta Hamilton, of this county. The deceased was a devout member of the Catholic church, and was a man who possessed many friends. Interment occurred at St. Charles cemetery last Saturday morning.

Death of Miss Keene.

Miss Agnes Keene, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Milton Keene of the St. Rose neighborhood, died at the home of her parents Sunday, and the body was buried in the St. Rose cemetery Monday. The deceased was about twenty-two years of age and had been in ill health for about three years. She was an excellent Christian and died comforted by the thought of a home beyond. To the sorrowing father and mother, and brothers and sisters The Sun extends sympathy.

THE VALUE OF TEA

GET YOUR TEA AT MCELROY & SHADERS, THE GROCERY MEN

Tea is properly made in the following manner: Allow a sufficient quantity of water to boil furiously for several minutes, then pour it upon the tea leaves in a vessel which can be closed up; let stand for ten minutes—no longer—then pour off the liquor into a heated vessel, leaving the tea leaves in the first vessel. By this method the fine flavor and stimulating properties of the tea are imparted to the liquid, the tannin remaining in the leaves. By boiling the tea or allowing it to draw more than ten minutes the tannin is released, rendering the resulting liquor unfit for use.

We carry the very highest grades of Green, Black and mixed Tea. Guarantee satisfaction. PRICE $1.00 PER POUND.

PONYVILLE.

The editor being kind enough to give us a space for a few news items in his valuable paper we will try to search up the local happenings of this vicinity each week for a letter and as most all are readers of The Sun we trust they will aid us in this work.

B. S. Oiler, of Covington, arrived last week for a visit to relatives here and at Brooksville. Mrs. Oiler and her children have been visiting here for several weeks.

J. D. Sutherland and wife, of Sycamore Valley, passed through here Saturday enroute to Warsaw to visit the latter's parents, Hon. W. C. Cammack and wife, and also to attend the Omstead meeting, which is in progress at old Fair Mount.

Mrs. J. S. Inman and two daughters, Misses Maud and Eva, spent Sunday with the family of T. W. Sutherland at Walnut Hill.

There will be prayer meeting at our "free for all church" every Thursday night. Jas. W. Settles will conduct the service Thursday night. All are cordially invited to attend.

The farmers will wind up cutting tobacco this week. The crop is a large one but has been greatly damaged by worms. Hands have been unusually scarce. Some have paid as high as $5 a day and could not secure them at that price. Much trouble has been experienced with tobacco burning in the barns. Some have been compelled to remove it from the barn and scuffle it in the barn-yard so it would not ruin. In quality the crop will not be a good one.

Clifton and little Miss Flossie Thomas are visiting their grandmother, Mrs. Sweeney, at Taylorville.

Thos. W. Sutherland will attend the State Convention of the Christian church at Louisville next week as a delegate from the Christian church at this place.

Large crowds from here have been attending the series of meetings at Willsburg, conducted by Revs. Young and Petty. Everyone is well pleased with Rev. Petty's strong, clear sermons, which are proving a great blessing to the church.

Tatham & Litsey have bought a carload of fat cattle at 21 to 23 cents. They will ship a carload of hogs from this vicinity in about ten days. There is quite a demand for live stock of all kinds and some tall prices are being paid.

Mrs. Chas. Hines and her charming daughter, Miss Mary Agnes, attended the "basket" meeting at old Fair Mount in Nelson county Saturday. They report a fine meeting and good prospects to build a church house at that place.

We have fought the battle for local option and won. We are all proud of the victory. It is now Washington county's time to send a man to the State Senate and with our Representative we will have two votes in the legislature, and we want these votes to be for a county unit bill that will apply to every county in the State. Let the Democratic party nominate such men and they will win by a big majority. There is no doubt but what the wholesale whisky men will center their fight in the Senate, and for this reason the local option people want a Senator from this district who will be able to fight our battle. That man, in our opinion, is Editor Gore. He did a grand work in this county, but he can do a greater work in the Senate in the way of helping us to get a better local option law. The temperance people all over the State are anxious to see him in the Senate, and there is no doubt but what this county would give him a majority of 800 or 1,000. Kelly's Shop precinct is for him first, last, and all the time. Let's have an expression from the other correspondents. A brighter day is now before the county than ever before.

[The above is appreciated by the editor of The Sun. But, just at this time we are very much inclined to say: "Nay! Nay!" However, there is plenty of time for a fellow to think over the matter—plenty of time for the people to think over the matter. After a little while—after a little "thinking"—I may conclude that the "departure" would be too "dangerous," and refuse to be "persuaded." Likewise, also, the people may conclude that there are others who will "fill the bill" better than I; after mature thought upon the subject the people—the dear, good people, might rise up in their might and say: "Gore, Go!—go away back and sit down." Let's all wait a little while and "think." But, let me say, that should I become a candidate—should I be elected to the Kentucky Senate, I would exert every effort, and use every honorable means to make a county unit law which would apply to all counties without restriction.—Ed.]

Kept the Secret.

Boyle County Herald: Nine months ago Mr. C. R. Martin and Mrs. Ella Caylor were united in marriage in Illinois.

Mrs. Caylor went for a visit to friends near Decatur, Mr. Martin followed, the marriage was performed on the last Wednesday of last November, and he returned home immediately. Shortly thereafter Mrs. Caylor returned and resumed her work as modiste at her residence on Fifth street. Both agreed to tell no one for nine months, and the date expired yesterday, and the secret was given out to their friends and relatives and a reporter for this paper.

So well was the secret kept that the most intimate members of the families were surprised in a high degree when the facts were related. Mr. Martin is the popular meat merchant and is well and favorably known by a wide circle of friends and customers in Danville and Boyle county. His bride is popular and has many friends who will be surprised. Mrs. Martin has been visiting in Somerset for several days and Mr. Martin went down yesterday. They returned together and will begin house-keeping at once in the handsome home which Mr. Martin has prepared for his bride on East Main street. They are receiving the congratulations of their friends and public approval on the fact that they can keep a secret well.

The Mexican day of independence was celebrated quietly yesterday with no disorder in any part of the country.

The new firm will be Boblitt, Brown & Bishop, and will occupy the stable near the depot. The stable used by Boblitt & Brown on Main street will be used as a feed and sale stable. An advertisement of a lot of horses, buggies, etc., appears in this issue.

PAINFULLY HURT—Ernest Spalding, son of Mr. Frank Spalding, of near town, was quite seriously hurt in a runaway Sunday night. His horse became unmanageable, throwing him from the vehicle. One of his legs was quite severely lacerated, and the wound is of a very painful nature. However, no serious results are apprehended, and it is thought that careful nursing will soon cure him.

The W. C. M. Society meet in regular session in Springfield Monday, Sept. 18th, at 1:30 o'clock. These present were: Drs. J. N. Sheehan, J. H. Lampton, W. E. Crume, J. B. Roberts, S. F. Hamilton W. W. Ray and J. H. Hopper. Papers were read by Drs. Crume, Ray and Sheehan. The next meeting will be held in the court house Sept. 28th, at which time the society expects to have a number of visiting physicians.

ABOUT WELL—The many friends of Mr. Luther Burns are glad to see him upon the streets of Springfield again. Mr. Burns has been confined to his home, near town, for several weeks of an attack of typhoid fever, and for over one month his condition was such that his friends were afraid that he could not recover. There are few more popular men in Washington county than Luther Burns, and his hundreds of friends are happy that he has been spared to them. Although he is yet weak, he is rapidly gaining strength and in a short time will be as strong as ever.

LAST WARNING TO TAXPAYERS.

Your taxes for 1906 are due, and the penalty will go on November 1. Under the new law which went into effect after November 1 your taxes can not be paid to me and a tax warrant will be issued against you by the county clerk and executed within ten days thereafter, making an additional cost to you of 10 per cent.

Come in before November 1 and save cost of execution and sale.

Shooting at Bardstown.

On last Friday afternoon Lud Muir shot and probably fatally wounded Harrison Cox, both of color. Two shots were fired, one ball taking effect in Cox's elbow joint and one near the hip joint. The difficulty originated in Cox's saloon and Muir claims that while in Cox's saloon Cox started at him with a knife. Both of the parties leaving the saloon at once and in a short while met in the rear of Whelan's saloon where the shooting took place with the above results.

The trial of Muir in the Nelson Circuit Court will cost the tax payers of Nelson county at the rate of from $80 to $150 per day, depending upon the number of witnesses. These said taxpayers will also pay to the jailor of Nelson county 50 cents per day jail for every day the defendant lies in jail awaiting trial.

No Child Labor.

Harrodsburg Herald: In his address to the Grand Jury at Danville, Monday, Judge Bell explained the new law requiring children under sixteen years of age to attend school and prohibiting them from working as telephone and telegraph messengers, as clerks in stores, and hands in printing offices and shops. Children under sixteen years of age may work during vacation and when it is necessary for their actual support. He strongly impressed upon the jurors the necessity of enforcing this provision of the statutes, that educational facilities which have been provided may be more generally taken advantage of, and the standard of citizenship thereby raised.

All persons indebted to the firm of Jarboe & Campbell make settlement at once. Books at B. D. Lake's office.

COUNTY COURT Day

WEDDING ANNOUNCEMENT.

The Sun has received the following invitation:

Mr. William Atchison invites you to be present at the marriage of his daughter Mary Elizabeth to Mr. Emmet Field McElroy Tuesday evening, September 25, at eight o'clock, at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. M. D. Scruggs, 2540 Tracy Avenue, Kansas City, Missouri.

Mr. McElroy is a son of Mr. and Mrs. A. C. McElroy, of this place. He has been living in Kansas City for about eight years, and is now recognized as one of the city's progressive business men. He is identified with quite a number of the city's large enterprises, and his ability to successfully manage business affairs has won for him the confidence and esteem of many of the wealthy men of the west. A more popular young man than Emmet McElroy never resided in Springfield. Gentle, accommodating and upright he won the admiration of his acquaintances, all of whom record a wish that many years of happiness will be his and hers, who are to soon start anew upon Life's Voyage.

PATTERSON-BELL.

Mrs. Jennie McClain Patterson, of Adairville, Ky., and Mr. James W. Bell, of Springfield, Tenn., were married in Louisville yesterday morning by the Rev. Mr. Chandler, of the Methodist church. Mrs. Bell is the mother of Mrs. W. M. Hagan, and is well-known and admired by many people here. She has frequently visited here, and during these visits made friends of her acquaintances. Mrs. Bell had been here since Sept. 1, and the wedding had been arranged to take place in Louisville at the conclusion of the visit to her daughter at this place.

Mr. Bell is an extensive land owner and farmer, of near Springfield, Tenn., and is one of the leading and prominent citizens of that section of the State. Mr. and Mrs. Bell will reside in Springfield, Tenn.

Many friends of the bride at this place extend best wishes.

FARM LANDS and FARMS

Are Increasing in Value. If You Want to Buy Now is The Time

IF YOU WANT TO SELL YOUR FARM PUT IT IN MY HANDS.

I believe—indeed I am sure—I can save you money if you desire to buy a farm in this or adjoining counties. I have a great many farms for sale—good ones—at reasonable prices, and I am anxious to show you any one of them. Remember, that land is constantly increasing in value, and there is hardly a remote possibility that it will decrease. Indeed, the man who buys a farm today may feel absolutely certain that its value will increase a third—possibly half, or more, within a half a dozen years. I honestly believe that you can be suited in place and price, if you will call upon me. I have farms in every section of the county—large and small, and all of them are well improved. I also have some bargains in town property.

See list in this issue of The Sun.

A FACT FOR YOU TO REMEMBER: WASHINGTON COUNTY LAND, COMPARED WITH THE LAND OF SURROUNDING COUNTIES, HAS ALWAYS BEEN TOO CHEAP, AND AS THE MONTHS GO BY IT INCREASES IN VALUE. NOW IS THE TIME TO BUY.

Slow but sure is a good motto for the novice in the poultry business.

Apples should be picked when they are fully matured, but before they have begun to mellow.

Legumes will fail to put nitrogen into the soil if the soil is too poor to make the leguminous crop a good start.

Do not pick the Kieffer pear until matured, and then put in dark place for some weeks for the best quality of the fruit to develop.

This year's wheat yield has out-clasped the famous wheat crop of 1901 by about 12,000,000 bushels, being, according to the latest estimates, over 750,000,000 bushels.

There are three essential points to successful dairying: Good breed of cows, growing of feed on the farm, and knowing your cows, which knowledge is obtained by the aid of the milk scales and a Babcock tester.

Caught—Merry—So you've taken to farming. I suppose you've noticed that brown cows eat more than black ones?

Berry—No. How do you account for it?
Merry—More of them—Cassels.

Frequent change of pasture is good for sheep at this time of year, and many noxious weeds and briars will be cleaned up out of the corner corners. Let them turn such undesirable growth into profitable wool and mutton.

Even in this day of books and scientific study of agriculture, there are many farmers which lack good libraries. No investment will pay so well as a few well-selected books, among which should be some on agricultural topics by recognized writers of worth.

Is the only shade which your hogs can find along the side of a fence row or on the interior of a stalling house? Then you cannot expect to realize a profit from them. Short-sighted economy or careless indifference makes a lean purse when it comes to squaring up the year's accounts.

Remember this when buying a cow: As a rule, men do not know their best cow any more than you would if you were the seller instead of the buyer. Experience in this direction shows that it is in the cow the owner wants to get rid of for some reason or other which is the one he wants to sell.

A correspondent from Arkansas says: Keep your eye on our apple orchards. There are over 3,000,000 trees growing in the state and they will soon be producing big crops. In matter of quality and color Arkansas apples rank high, and are the growers of two counties $3,000,000 in one year—an average of over one dollar per tree, big and little.

There is a so-called "farmers' own ticket" in New York state with Capt. William C. Clark, a statesman-farmer of Constantia, as candidate for governor. Whether he will be as successful in raising votes as he is in raising grain remains to be seen. Certain it is that he will find that the former crop will have to be cultivated in a different manner from those he has been accustomed to raise.

Farmers' unions in the Indian territory, or rather now the new state of Oklahoma, are said to have established warehouses and clearing houses with a view to protecting their interests against the speculators in farm products, especially cotton. In addition to the warehouses for storing the cotton until satisfactory prices can be obtained, the farmers are buying cotton gins and propose to gin their own cotton. Why not such unions? Why should not farmers so cooperate as to secure the very best possible prices for their products?

The quality of the salt used in the dairy is of vital importance, for it serves four purposes in butter and cheese making. It expels buttermilk or whey. It augments the keeping qualities of butter. It serves to note the ripening of cheese and it accentuates flavor. It can be easily appreciated that if the salt contains impurities, it will affect the butter and cheese. An ideal butter salt should be pure white, of a uniform, thin flake grain of medium size, without ill odor, and it should serve from the bitter salts and dirt. The ideal cheese salt may be similarly described, save that the grain may be larger.

Around the World.

St. Louis—When George E. Holt and Lester R. Greaves, of Moline, Ill., sailed for Liverpool the other day there was begun one of the most pretentious globe-trotting expeditions ever attempted. These two men propose to literally ride all over the face of earth on bicycles.

Time is no object in this long journey, and it is expected that not less than three years will be necessary.

The first stage of cycling will be to sail for Liverpool from whence they expect to tour England and Scotland, crossing to Ireland, and proceeding southward to the coast, where they will take the steamer Belandine to Holland, Denmark and Sweden will be the first countries visited in the order named. From Stockholm they will ride toward St. Petersburg, and from there they will turn southward and pass through Germany, France and Spain. They expect to celebrate New Year's day of 1907 somewhere in the northern part of Africa, and if revolutionary troubles do not interfere will visit Tripoli, Algeria and Morocco.

That the journey will be no child's play is evidenced by the itinerary from Morocco. From here they will ride over the shifting sands of the great Sahara desert to Timbuctoo.

By this time another spring will have come, and the tourists will proceed northward to Sicily, whence up the Italian peninsula, and on up through Europe in a line parallel to that taken on its descent, making a tour eastward to take in Turkey and Greece; thence to Egypt, through the Holy Land and down to the Red sea, and ending around the Indian peninsula, touching at Ceylon.

From there they intend to go to Malay, Turany, Siam and Singapore. Sumatra and Borneo are the next stopping places. After studying conditions in the Philippine islands, Japan will be seen, from whence the homeward journey will be undertaken, making a stop at Hawaii, and finally landing at San Francisco.

Crenz and Holt will carry recommendations from the governors of Illinois, Pennsylvania, Louisiana, Oregon, Connecticut, Kansas and Florida, one of the most important of their credentials being from Hon. S. M. Calton, chairman of the senate committee on foreign relations, which invites many favors being extended them for this purpose.

Whether it is the result of bad example or not, the people of France are drinking absinth much more heavily than formerly, and with appreciable results. While the population of Belgium, for instance, has increased 14 per cent during the last fifteen years, the consumption of alcohol has increased 37 per cent during the same period. Cases of insanity have been increased in number 45 per cent; suicide 80 per cent and arrests for begging and vagabondage 150 per cent.

It was a revelation of the danger into which the country was steadily moving that prompted the action of the Belgian legislature in banishing absinth from that country.

Far reaching is the bill, which passed both houses by an overwhelming vote. It prohibits the manufacture, import, transport, storage or sale of the liquor or any substitute for it. Violations of the law are to be met with severe penalties. Perhaps the most unfortunate results of the absinth habit is the fact that its effect is so liable to be transmitted to children. Many of these, who do not become drunkards themselves—which most of them do—evidence of mental weakness, manifest a tendency toward epilepsy or become afflicted with some serious nervous trouble.

The lessons taught by the evils of absinth drinking might well be labeled upon every bottle in the form of the Greek word from which the name of the liquor is derived—"Aspidochelone," which must not be drunk.

ABSINTH IS A

DEADLY DRINK.

And Thousands Are Being Killed By Drinking It.

Alarmed by the ravages of absinth, which is sapping the moral, mental and physical life of the nation, France is demanding a war of extermination upon that deadly drink.

The trades unions of the country, leading members of the chamber of deputies, prominent physicians, business men and statesmen are organizing a national petition demanding that the manufacture and sale of absinth be prohibited.

Authorities among the petitioners assert that absinth kills tens of thousands of people every year. The drink first made its appearance in that country after the Algerian war, in 1847 or 1848. While in Algeria the French soldiers adopted the custom of the natives in using the liquor to fight the low fever of that malarial climate, and they grew to like it so well that they carried it home with them.

"Since then absinth has been the steadily growing curse of the nation," says an authority, "until now the French are the most nervous and excited people under the sun."

"Not only has the liquor its effect upon the drinker, but through him makes a marked impression upon the succeeding generations. It is for this reason more than any other that the French as a nation are deteriorating." It is a curious thing that the absinth drinker, especially among the lower classes, feels an acute sense of personal oppression under the spell of the insidious poison.

He hates everybody; the hand of error is against him. Even his wife and children are intriguing to destroy his peace and happiness.

When he passes the home of the wealthy man he mutters to himself: "He is without a cent in his pocket because the rich steal it all. If he can jostle right a well dressed man or woman while on his way the set gives him a savage sort of pleasure; ordered to move on by a policeman, an insane desire to kill the uniformed representative of law wells up in his breast."

Not long ago, laboring under the hallucination, due to absinth, that his wife was not faithful to him, a Paris laborer killed her and their child. "Absinth," said Senator Beranger recently, "is responsible for the depopulation of the country and for more than two-thirds of the crimes committed." Even the judges who deal with criminal cases recognize the fact that to be a confirmed victim of "absinthism" is a reason for almost any crime.

There are many dens throughout the poorer quarters of Paris where the wretched absinth victim, sunk to the lowest depths of degradation, may have a glass of poison for 2 cents and be permitted the use of a dark corner in which to sleep.

As his victims usually tip the proprietor liberally, he welcomes them with greater pleasure than he does the trembling wretches who come to buy brandy. They may gaze upon sin and misery to their hearts' content.

One never sees evidences of merry-making or high heartedness among the victims of absinth. Everything is suggestive of hopeless misery. Men and women may be there—at any hour of the day and night, and at one time, but are now simply absinth drunkards—through whose feeble brains the shadows of weird dreams are passing.

But once in the grip of absinth the victim is seldom able to set himself free. He will do anything to obtain the money to purchase it. Not infrequently guides on the Alps have been known to murder tourists in their care to obtain their money for this purpose.

Whether it is the result of bad example or not, the people of France are drinking absinth much more heavily than formerly, and with appreciable results.

While the population of Belgium, for instance, has increased 14 per cent during the last fifteen years, the consumption of alcohol has increased 37 per cent during the same period. Cases of insanity have been increased in number 45 per cent; suicide 80 per cent and arrests for begging and vagabondage 150 per cent.

Violations of the law are to be met with severe penalties. Perhaps the most unfortunate results of the absinth habit is the fact that its effect is so liable to be transmitted to children.

Many of these, who do not become drunkards themselves—which most of them do—evidence of mental weakness, manifest a tendency toward epilepsy or become afflicted with some serious nervous trouble.

BEER IS POISON

The alarming growth of the use of beer among our people and the spreading delusion among many who consider themselves temperate and sober that the encouragement of beer drinking is an effective way of promoting the cause of temperance and of aiding to stamp out the demon rum impelled the Blade to send a representative to a number of leading physicians of Toledo to obtain their opinions as to the real damage which indulging in malt liquors does the victim of that form of intemperance.

Every one bears testimony that no man can drink beer safely, that it is an injury to any one who uses it in any quantity and that its effects on the general health of the country have been even worse than that of whiskey.

The indictment they with one accord present against beer drinking is simply terrible. The detestful crushing a man in his long, winding arms and sucking the marrow of his brain, and the frightful an assault as this deadly but insidious enemy, which fastens itself upon its victims and daily becomes more and more the wretched man's master, clogging his liver, rotting his kidneys, decaying his heart and arteries, stupefying and starving the brain, choking his lungs and bronchia, loading his body with dropsical fluids and unwholesome fats, fastening upon him rheumatism, erysipelas and all manner of painful and disgusting diseases and finally dragging him to his grave at a time when other men are in their prime of mental and bodily vigor. Here are the statements of two physicians.

Dr. S. H. Burgen, a practitioner thirty-five years, twenty-eight in Toledo, says: "I think beer kills quicker than any other liquor. My attention was first called to its insidious effects when I began examining for life insurance. I passed as unusually good risks five German-young business men—who having similar luck with confirmed beer drinkers, and my practice since has been confirmation on confirmation."

"The first organ to be attacked is the kidneys, the liver soon sympathizes and then comes, most frequently, dropsy or Bright's disease, both certain to end fatally. Among the dreadful results of beer drinking are lockjaw and erysipelas, and the beer drinker seems incapable of recovering from mild disorders and injuries not usually regarded of a grave character. Pneumonia, pleurisy, fevers, etc., seem to have a first mortgage on him, which they foreclose remorselessly at an early opportunity."

Dr. S. B. Thorn, a physician of experience in the army and twenty years' practice in Toledo, said: "Adulterants are not the most important things in my estimation; it is the beer itself. It stupefies the intellect because it is a narcotic and cumulative in its effects. For instance, cereals are cumulative. A dose of one-sixteenth or one thirty-second of a grain would have no appreciable effect on the system, but a number of these administrations consecutively would soon produce salivation and other destructive results. So beer accumulates and gathers pernicious agencies in the system until they become very destructive."

"Every man who drinks beer in any quantity soon begins to load himself with soft, unhealthy fat. This is because it is the result of interference with the natural elimination of deleterious substances. No man, no matter what his constitution, can go on long with his system full of the morbid and dead matter which the liver and kidneys are intended to work off."—From a Speech in the United States Senate by Hon. J. H. Gallinger.

Pain from a Burn Promptly Relieved by Chamberlain's Pain Balm.

Mr. James N. Nichols, a merchant and postmaster at Vernon, Conn., makes the following statement: "A little child of Michael Strauss was recently in great pain from a burn on the hand, and as cold applications only increased the inflammation, Mr. Strauss came to me for something to stop the little one's pain. From the many liniments I carry with me, I selected Chamberlain's Pain Balm, and the first application drew out the inflammation and gave immediate relief. I have used this liniment myself and recommend it very often for cuts, burns, strains, and lame back, and have never known it to disappoint. For sale by every reliable dealer in the Blue Grass."

England's Drink Bill.
Dr. Dawson Burns, analyzing the official returns of the quantities of intoxicating liquors consumed in the United Kingdom during 1905, concludes that there has been a decrease of nearly $25,000,000. The year under review, moreover, is not exceptional in this respect—it is, in fact, the sixth registering a consecutive decreased expenditure on alcoholic beverages. The decrease for 1904 was over $28,000,000. The total decrease in the national drink bill in the six years amounts to about $110,000,000.—Chicago Record-Herald.

Rare Beans.

Boyle County, Ky.—Rev. B. Helm left at this office Tuesday a bunch of beans which measure fully thirty inches in length. They grow on the same size vines as the small bean, are just as good for the table, but one of these beans equals a handful of the old-fashioned kind. Mr. Helm also left a cornfield bean, which is the largest in every way of any that has been brought to our notice. One of the most interesting products ever grown in the county is a camphor tree, and Mr. Helm left a leaf from the tree at this office. It is dark green in color and almost round. Camphor trees grow in China. The beans and camphor tree are growing in the farm of Mr. W. L. Caldwell on the Lebanon pike.

ONE MOUSE; TWO SNAKES.

Both Copperheads Try to Swallow the Same Victim.

Pittsburg.—Two hungry copperhead snakes trying to swallow the same mouse was an exciting spectacle at the Highland park zoo. Finally the mouse was taken away from them by Keeper Ernest Trotter and the reptiles, apparently each blaming the other for losing them their dinner, started to fight in vigorous fashion. The mood and determination of the snakes made it necessary to put them in separate cages to prevent a repulsive tragedy.

When the mouse was tossed into the cage the copperheads each eyed him intently for some time a minute without making a move. When they did move it was simultaneously, one grabbing the mouse by the head and the other catching his hindquarters. Then the swallowing began, but with unsatisfactory results.

Each snake was trying to swallow the mouse away from the other and it looked as if the one that proved victor would have to swallow his mate. All the time the snakes were twisting about each other and acting in such a frenzied fashion that Keeper Trotter took the mouse away from them.

The snakes then started to fight and Keeper Trotter says one of them would have been killed if he had not placed them in separate cages. Each of the snakes is about three feet long.

Worms at the Tobacco.

Sharpsburg, Ky.—The tobacco growers of this section are complaining of the multitude of tobacco worms which are devouring the late crop. The rains have been so continuous that the paras green which ordinarily is applied to kill the pests has been constantly washed off.

Lexington, Ky.—James Stravel, charged with the murder of his uncle, William Wilburn, was discharged by County Judge Bullock. The witnesses testified that Wilburn had fired the shot.

J. D. Sutherland, Springfield, Rt. 3, has for sale 1000 oak lumber.

Horses Drop Dead.

Harrodsburg Democrat: While driving on the Lexington pike Tuesday afternoon, Mr. Samuel Vanarsdall met an automobile, and so frightened his horse that the animal reared and plunged and then fell stone dead in the pike. It was stated that Manager George Hall, of the East Tennessee Telephone Company, was driving the machine. Mr. Vanarsdall gave instructions to have the automobilist arrested.

Upon hearing the report of a run at Booneville, Ind., a valuable horse belonging to Judge Edward Gough, a prominent Southern Indiana jurist and State Representative from Warrick county, fell dead.

Eugene H. Gough, cashier of the Booneville National Bank and a son of Judge Gough, had been out fishing with Eugene Rodgers and upon their return they were attacked by a large chicken hawk. One of the occupants of the buggy raised a gun and fired at the bird, killing it instantly. Their horse upon hearing the report of the gun fell dead in his tracks.

Commissioner's Sale.

H. R. Thompson, Admr., etc., vs. Hagley Wright, etc.

By virtue of a judgement and order of sale of the Washington Circuit Court, rendered at the May term, 1906, in the above styled cause, I shall proceed to offer for sale at the Court House door in Springfield, Ky., on MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 24, 1906, at 2 o'clock or thereabout, to the highest bidder at public auction upon a credit of six and twelve months, the following described property, to-wit:

Two certain tracts of land situated on the waters of Mays Creek, in Washington county, Ky., on the dirt road leading from Kelly's Shop to Fenwick and bounded as follows: On the North by the lands of George and John Hart and Dan Rogers, on the East by the lands of Dan Rogers, John C. Settles, Martin Wright, George Wright and James Jans, on the South by the public dirt road leading from Kelly's Shop to Fenwick, and on the West by the land of J. W. Walls, formerly J. W. Thompson, and contains 67 acres more or less.

Tract No. 2.—Situated in said county and State and adjacent to No. 1, and contains as follows: Beginning at the forks of the branch, thence up a large branch it meanders so as to include one half of same, 80 poles to a stone on the North side of said branch just below the mouth of the drain corner to Thomas Leachman, thence 42 1/2 poles to a stone on the North side of a drain on Clark's line, corner to same; thence N. 89 W. 80 1/2 poles to a poplar and sugar tree on the North side of a branch corner to Clark, thence down said branch as it meanders so as to include one half of same 43 1/2 to the beginning. Containing 26 acres, 2 rods and 19 poles.

For the purchase price the purchaser or purchasers, with approved security, must execute bonds bearing legal interest from date of sale until paid, and having the force and effect of a judgment. A lien will be retained on land for which bond is executed, promptly with these terms.
